COLLEGE APPLICATION PROCESS

Almost all colleges are asking that you go online and download their admission application. You can either do it directly on line or down load a paper copy. If you do it online make sure you down load a counselor page and give it to Mrs. Megyese so I can complete your application and mail your official transcript. If you do a paper application you can give me the completed application and I will mail it along with a transcript and the counselor section that same day or the next morning. You should hear from the admissions office about your status in about 3 to 4 weeks. If not, please see me and we will call the college to find out the reason for your delay.

FINANCIAL AID/SCHOLARSHIPS

Often you hear about someone promoting “Millions and Billions of Dollars in Aid Went Unclaimed”. Fast web searched this financial aid MYTH and found the only aid that has ever gone unclaimed is aid that can’t be claimed. This myth is based on a 1976-77 academic year study that estimated that 7 billion dollars of employer tuition assistance was potentially available to employees i.e., if every eligible employee were to go to college, but that only about $300 to $400 million was being used each year. Subtract one from the other and misreport it, and you get the infamous “$6.6 billion in scholarships went unclaimed last year.

SCHOLARSHIP PROCESS

If the scholarship was listed in the “College Bulletin” (C.B.) or heard during the daily announcements, see Mrs. Megyese for an application form before the deadline date.

WATCH THE DEADLINE DATES.

Many applications require at least “3” letters of recommendation. Keep copies of these letters so they can be used again for other scholarships. Have them addressed to “WHOM IT MAY CONCERN” and be general about the scholarship you will be applying for.

Several scholarships require that you write a 300 to 500 word essay on “What Is Your Career Goal”, or others may ask you to site any experiences you may have had in that area. By doing this ahead it will be easy to complete several applications.
